

Louisiana Wing

Louisiana Wing Providing Valuable Service

■ Its commitment to missions devoted to disaster relief and homeland security, combined with highly successful cadet and aerospace education programs, makes the Louisiana Wing a cost-effective asset for local, state and national agencies.

The wing continues to support the Green Flag East program, one of the only two joint Civil Air Patrol/ Department of Defense projects devoted to training warfighters in the use of unmanned aircraft. The program has trained members of the U.S. and allied nations' military for more than a decade.

The wing leads in the area of aerospace education by helping provide a wealth of STEM-related opportunities to CAP members and students across the state. By providing inquiry-based science, technology, engineering and math products as well as effective interaction with educators, the wing helps educators pursue academic excellence in their classrooms with grade-specific materials at no cost.

Through the wing's cadet program, the next generation learns life skills and ethical values along with key leadership and management practices.

A Louisiana Wing aircrew generated this damage assessment photo after the passage of Tropical Storm Barry, showing an inundated industrial complex in Patterson.

